RECTOR'S BLOG

Beloved Friends,
What a splendid celebration of the Resurrection this past Sunday! Thank you again and again to everyone in our exquisitely beautiful, faithful and talented community who worked so hard to offer a liturgy and experience that welcomed nearly 200 through our doors for our in-person, Trinity@316 service as well as an uplifting sacred digital experience through our on-line, Trinity@Home service... Racial Justice Challenge April 17-May 15

This year, Trinity is once again encouraging everyone to sign up and take advantage of this wonderful offering from the YWCA. Over the past few years many of us have engaged this material and found it educational, challenging and inspiring. It is free and available for you to access as you are available.

The YWCA Racial Justice Challenge is a self-guided program and is open to individuals, organizations, and businesses throughout the Northwest Ohio region.

Participants will receive daily emails with curated contents such as articles, podcasts, videos, and more, that focus on topics such as structural racism, implicit bias, and privilege. The content is intended to encourage participants to reflect on their own experiences and biases, and to engage in discussions with others in the community about these important issues.

Shalom! Peace to you my dear ones. As we move further into this season of Eastertide- these 50 days after the Resurrection, our community will gather both through Trinity@Home (on-line) and with Trinity@316 (in-person) this Sunday and hear a familiar story to many of us. Jesus will join two of his followers on the road to Emmaus. I call it a familiar story, not because of ... Read More

Beloved Friends,

Inside the pages of a fable-like poetry collection called, The Prophet, written in 1923 by Kahil Gibran, are words of his poem On Children. I have memorized the words, sung them for years and written them on my heart, thanks to the musical setting offered years later by Sweet Honey in the Rock.

While most will read the poem (provided below), as a commissioning to parents and a reminder that our children are not our ... Read More
